A LETTER FROM THE BOARD PRESIDENT
+ EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Dear Ohio City stakeholder,

2014 was a year of catalytic growth for the neighborhood and one of organizational transition for Ohio City Incorporated. As one of three neighborhoods in the City of Cleveland that grew between 2000 and 2010, and with unprecedented demand for new housing, Ohio City Incorporated created a strategic vision that focuses on smart, family friendly and equitable growth.

In September, the Board of Trustees appointed a new Executive Director from within the organization, which allowed existing staff members to grow into new roles and created capacity to bring on new team members. The board and staff are working tirelessly together in our mission of leading the development of Ohio City by serving a diverse community of committed people, driving new investments, preserving the neighborhood's storied history and promoting this authentic urban neighborhood.

Over the past year, the 2014-2016 strategic vision has guided us to many accomplishments in our focus areas of people, place & promotion.

People Ohio City Incorporated worked with partners to expand Near West Recreation programming, which now serves 750 children of all income levels across Cleveland’s Near West Side. The Ohio City Farm also will continue to provide the community with fresh food after a new five year lease with Cuyahoga County Metropolitan Housing Authority.

Place We partnered with the City of Cleveland to explore transportation options for all people –whether they choose to drive, walk, bike or take transit along Ohio City’s major corridors, including a new buffered bike lane and dedicated parking along Detroit Avenue; a more complete and green street along West 25th Street, and a streetscape project along Lorain Avenue which would feature the City of Cleveland’s first separated bike lane. We are excited that over 800 units of housing are currently under development in the neighborhood, adding appropriate density along our major corridors connecting residents to transit and promoting walkability.

Promotion We have worked hard to bring dynamic programming to all corners of the neighborhood including events such as Station Hope, Ohio City Stages, Brite Winter Festival, Literary Lots and Evening in Ohio City. We welcomed thousands to the neighborhood during the 9th International Gay Games.

Thank you to our membership, visitors, business owners, elected officials and our dedicated residents for your commitment and support of our organization as we serve a community that is contributing to Cleveland’s revival and enthusiasm for the urban core.

Sincerely,

PEOPLE

NEAR WEST RECREATION

Ohio City Incorporated and partners accomplished the following in 2014:

- Hired a fulltime Near West Recreation Manager
- Served over 736 participants, compared to 250 in 2013
- Worked with over 65 volunteers and coaches

In addition to small business and corporate sponsorship, including a presenting sponsorship from Ohio Savings Bank, Near West Recreation received nearly $30,000 of funding from Major League Baseball's Baseball Tomorrow Fund.

MIAMI UNIVERSITY URBAN TEACHING COHORT

The second year of the Miami University Urban Teaching Cohort hosted 45 Miami University students for urban immersion and student teaching experiences in Ohio City and Cleveland. The program collaborated with four neighborhood schools, six non-profit organizations and neighborhood residents.

CLEAN & SAFE

Ohio City Incorporated strives to build a longterm foundation for neighborhood safety and beautification. In 2014 Ohio City Incorporated:

- Ohio City Incorporated hosted 15 volunteers days and managed 450 volunteers, who committed over 2,000 hours to the community.
- Worked with the Cleveland Police Second District to facilitate 28 resident safety audits. In turn, the organization invested $2,000 in Home Safety Match Grants.
- Launched the Ohio City Lights program which will have up to 10 solar powered LED flood lights installed by 2015.

OHIO CITY FARM

The total sales (not total revenue) on the farm (minus grants) for 2014 were $106,648, over a 20% increase from last year.

- Restaurant sales: $40,196 (up 9% from 2013)
- CSA Subscriptions: $54,178 (up 35% from 2013)
- Farm Stand: $12,278 (up 8% from 2013)
- Food assistance, including EBT, Senior Coupons, WIC and Produce Perks, increased 5% from last year, totaling 14% of farm sales.

PLACE

PLACE

Over the last year, Ohio City Incorporated continued its mission to improve the neighborhood by guiding appropriate physical development. In 2014:

- Ohio City Incorporated assisted 16 businesses to open throughout the neighborhood bringing nearly 200 jobs to the neighborhood see figure #1 on page 10
- Completed six storefront renovation projects
- The Small Business Development program invested $50,000 in 11 businesses leveraging over $108,000 from the City of Cleveland and over $346,000 in private investment spurring over $504,000 in neighborhood investment.

A 2013 housing study conducted by Ohio City Incorporated showed an immediate demand for over 1,800 units of new housing. As of December 2014, the neighborhood has nearly 800 units of for sale and rental housing under construction or development. see figure #2 on page 10

During the summer of 2014, RTA launched the Ohio City Connector brand, highlighting the ease of using public transit between Ohio City and Downtown. RTA makes 200 daily trips between the West Side Market and Public Square. see figure #3 on page 10

MARKET DISTRICT IMPROVEMENT CORPORATION STATS

- Dealt with 629 cases of panhandling
- Removed 80,000 pounds of trash
- Removed 1,000 instances of graffiti
- Interacted with residents, businesses, and visitors 7,557 times
- Completed 314 safety escorts
- Biked 1,200 miles around the Market District

LORAIN AVENUE

Working with the City of Cleveland and other stakeholders on a new streetscape for Lorain Avenue, Ohio City could have the City's first separated bike lane. In August 2014, with the generous support from the George Gund Foundation, Ohio City Incorporated had the opportunity to take City officials and other stakeholders to Indianapolis to learn more about separated bike lane infrastructure. During this trip, participants learned about the bike infrastructure and the positive impact it has had. We look forward to reengaging the community on this issue in 2015.

PROMOTION

PROMOTION

Ohio City is a destination neighborhood that benefits from a strong brand and neighborhood events that attract a regional audience. In 2014, the strength and reach of the Ohio City brand grew exponentially.

- In the first year of the 2014-2016 Strategic Plan, Ohio City Incorporated began to evolve its current event schedule to include Evening in Ohio City, Ohio City Run + Crawl and the Ohio City Harvest Festival
- The organization utilized partnerships to bring major events to Ohio City including: Brite Winter Festival, Cleveland Public Theatre's Station Hope, The Cleveland Museum of Art for Ohio City Stages, Cleveland Bazaar for Open Air in Market Square, Literary Lots, and the Ohio City Merchants' Association Holiday Hop
- Ohio City Incorporated has earned over 25,000 Twitter followers and 4,000 Facebook likes, 1,800 Instagram followers, and continues to build audiences. Ohio City Incorporated also manages accounts for the West Side Market which include over 88,000 Facebook likes, 18,500 Twitter followers and 3,800 Instagram followers
- As Cleveland welcomed the 9th International Gay Games, Ohio City Incorporated welcomed visitors and participants on a neighborhood level with programming, decorations, and a special limited edition Ohio City pride flag.

Arts & Culture Award: Ohio City Stages

Throughout July, the community is invited to a weekly block party where the sounds of various cultures and continents entertain and delight. On Wednesday evenings, residents (and non-residents) gather outside the Transformer Station where melodies from Honduras to Mauritania fill the air.

Ohio City Stages has been bringing the community together by bringing in global musicians for the past two summers. Director of Performing Arts for the Cleveland Museum of Art, Thomas Welsh, said the program sprang from the museum's desire to provide top-tier, global summertime programs in Cleveland like those popular in New York City and Chicago. CMA relished in the opportunity to utilize its near-west side presence in the Transformer Station.

“Transformer Station is fully present, the program arrived in 2013 fully formed, and was immediately a great success. The greatest accomplishment of the program is neighbors meeting neighbors and people loving living in the city. Its success has a lot to do with the energy in Ohio City. We threw a little bit of fuel on a fire that was already there.”

He added that the exotic beats, ranging from classical to contemporary with a bit of dance, act as an energizing force for the neighborhood that is an active player in Cleveland's ongoing renaissance. Through it all, Ohio City Stages is dedicated to organizing bands and getting the neighborhood excited. Paying close attention to trends in global music, Ohio City Stages provides residents with the unique opportunity to catch globally successful acts that rarely play the United States. ★

Resident Leader Award: Graham Veysey & Marika Shioiri-Clark

As Hingetown emerges as a vibrant, desirable part of the neighborhood, it is undoubtedly thanks to the courageous and creative residents who have worked hard to make it so. Two such residents are Graham Veysey and Marika Shioiri-Clark, who created the Cleveland SOUP, which raises micro-grant money for small community-led projects; planned Hingetown Hygge with community bonfires, drinks, art and stories; and helped to plan Sunday Market and the bike share program.

After Veysey renovated the Ohio City Firehouse, the couple redeveloped the historic Striebinger Block building with both residential and small business space.

They said it is the community that has inspired all of their local projects and endeavors.

“Being able to work with neighbors and business owners and everyone who is so committed to this place is both inspiring and enormously fulfilling. Collaborating with neighbors and friends not just for brick-and-mortar projects but also with neighborhood programming that activates the street is really humbling and exciting.”

“We want to continue to work on programming that is radically inclusive and gives people even more excuses to come to Hingetown, especially on foot or bike... Our vision is that people will be able to seamlessly walk from Hingetown to the Happy Dog, the Warehouse District, and the Market District.” ★

Commercial Preservation Award: Justin Carson

Inspired by a grandmother who taught him Cleveland’s history at a young age, Justin Carson is not only making his business part of that history; he is making Cleveland history part of his business.

Justin purchased and completely gut-renovated the mixed-use buildings at 4125 Lorain Avenue and 4142 Lorain Avenue.

“I wanted to find a place that was walkable for my employees and also create a transformation of an area of Ohio City that had not seen much investment in years,” he explained. “I believe that there are many ways of renovating a building that can benefit community. Once people see improvement they want to be part of it... You can have transformative change quickly.”

Justin repurposed many of the renovation materials including using old Cleveland Public Library book shelves as wall coverings; old bed rails to wrap beams; and bowling alley flooring for a bar. The tables, beer samplers, and tap handles are all repurposed.

In addition to creating residential space, he moved his business, JC Beertech, to the property; opened Platform Brewery; and moved the Cleveland Brew Shop to his storefront. He has also been actively involved in the community and was one of the original partners in bringing the Zagster bike share program to Ohio City. ✨

Presidential Award: Skylight Financial Group

When businesses serve the community, everybody wins. Skylight Financial Group is a company doing just that. Moving its headquarters, along with about 100 employees, from downtown to W. 25th Street, Skylight has already provided space for neighborhood block meetings, assistance for the neighborhood farmer’s market, and was a founding sponsor in the Zagster bike share program.

“Ohio City was clearly an area where we could bring diversity to an already progressive neighborhood,” Director of Marketing Mark Owens said. “We benefit from the community through being in a vibrant neighborhood, one where our clients are more willing to visit. It also helps with our recruiting efforts, because our recruiting demographic matches the Ohio City demographic.”

The privately owned financial-planning firm signed a ten-year lease on the top floor of the United Bank Building, occupying nearly 18,000 square feet. They added a tenth floor with city views and commissioned local artist Jessica Newell to paint old Cleveland streetscape murals in the first floor lobby.

Skylight employees will almost certainly frequent Ohio City restaurants, bars, and businesses like the West Side Market, in addition to attending local events. Skylight Financial Group has already become active partners in local organizations such as Providence House, Lutheran Hospital, Ohio City Merchants, and Ohio City Inc. 🌟

AWARDS

Residential Preservation Award: Nia & Jeff Green

Nia and Jeff Green decided to make their first home purchase matter when they took on a full gut renovation at 4014 Whitman Avenue, making a duplex into a single-family home. Seeking a house with historic roots, the couple quickly ruled out the expense of purchasing one in move-in condition and the uncertainty of buying one that had been flipped. In early 2014, they bought the 1,888 square-foot house that had been built in 1900.

Numerous additions and renovations had stripped the property of almost all its original features, with only the stair banister remaining.

“We vaulted the ceilings wherever we could, highlighting some of the past additions so we could still see the story of our house’s history,” Nia said. “To keep the home authentic to its 19th century origins while embracing the newness of our renovation, we carefully selected finish materials that could have been original to the home but still held a modern feel: narrow plank, natural wood flooring throughout; ceramic hex tile and subway tile; marble accents. We ended up salvaging our banister and newel and added a salvaged leaded window to the staircase landing.”

The couple even located a front door that was a close match to a historic photo of the home with its original door. They rebuilt the front porch columns and banister and added molding as well as new windows. They are currently adding historic detail to the stair treads and stringer. ★

New Construction: Single-Family: Jason Bristol & Alex Frondorf

Continuing to breathe new life into an old neighborhood requires a healthy respect for both old and new. Jason Bristol and Alex Frondorf have honored the history of Ohio City by building a timeless new home on Clinton Avenue.

The pair replaced a long-vacant lot with a Federal style single-family home. Respecting the history of the lot, they hired Ohio City architect David Ellison to build in a style popular in America from the 1780s through the 1830s. They even curved the sidewalk around a 150-year-old elm instead of removing it.

The house boasts a library and roof-top terrace with views of Cleveland and Lake Erie. It also features a Palladian double cube room on the back of the house, a rare feature that can be seen on Thomas Jefferson's Monticello and George Washington's Mount Vernon homes.

"We wanted to do our part in restoring part of the single family fabric of the historic district," Alex said. "Our ancestors took great pride in what they built and how they built it. They attended to the design and aesthetic of the urban fabric. From a worker's cottage to a Franklin Boulevard mansion, the neighborhood we live in today reflects the notion that architectures matters for everyone. In Ohio City, we are the benefactors of those generations' pride in the growing city. What we build today should also reflect that same pride and attention to architectural detail. We should build our urban fabric with the hope and expectation that 100 years from now our descendants will feel the same way." ✨

AWARDS

New Business Award: Harness Cycle

Ohio City is an active community, and Harness Cycle has wasted no time riding in and inspiring the community to keep moving. Owner Anne Hartnett has hosted free yoga events, running clubs, and a 5k race since opening last year, in addition to indoor cycling and spin classes and a retail component.

“The mission of Harness is to ignite an active culture in Cleveland and build community through movement,” she explained. “Ohio City is a unique neighborhood that passionately supports local businesses. As a resident, I felt there was a need for an active outlet in this young and vibrant neighborhood.”

The former wellness director has an active history as an athlete and bicyclist and has even worked as a bicycle tour guide. She and her husband fell in love with the community while renovating their home; now she’s designed a space in Hingetown where residents can work-out, reflect and connect.

“We are so fortunate to be thriving as a result of the partnerships formed with Ohio City Inc., other businesses, and of course the people who patron our shop. We believe that our service is really sparking a new culture in our neighborhood. We encourage an active lifestyle that connects people.”

Anne has plans to increase capacity for classes and retail offerings, and add yoga and paddle boarding services as well as continuing their run club and hosting a second annual Running the Bridges Road Race. ★

Community Service: The Riverview Tower Clinic

Care Alliance has given the community another reason to smile, adding dental care and expanding services at the Riverview Tower Clinic in Ohio City. In addition to the medical services offered two days a week, a recent renovation allowed for expanded services including medical, dental, behavioral health and wrap-around services, five days a week, with 13 full time staff members.

The organization that provides healthcare services to individuals living in extreme poverty has served the near-west side since its inception as Cleveland Health Care for the Homeless in 1985. The Riverview Tower Clinic opened in 1998 as a central location to continue that work. They provide care on a sliding fee scale based on income and do not turn anyone away due to an inability to pay. Nearly nine out of ten Care Alliance patients are uninsured.

“We are uniquely positioned to inject health and community engagement in the Ohio City renaissance, which includes a focus on healthy food from the West Side Market and urban farm behind the Riverview building,” Jennifer Kons, manager of development and programs, said. “At the Riverview Tower Clinic, multiple outreach strategies are already bringing previous and new patients to the site.”

With the new expansion, Care Alliance is poised to increase the overall health and wellness of disadvantaged residents in need of specialty care, health screenings, and health maintenance and wellness care. It also contributes to neighborhood revitalization efforts in Riverview with a $1.7 million annual investment, giving everybody something to smile about. 🌟

New Construction: Multi-Family: Mariner's Watch

Ohio City continues to grow and thrive, and now even more people will be able to call the flourishing area home with the opening of Mariner's Watch. The 62-unit high-end apartment building on Detroit Avenue is the first multi-family new construction in Ohio City since 2001, replacing a vacant yachting supply warehouse.

As with all real estate, father and son development partners Charles (Bud) and Brian Koch know that location is vital. Brian said they chose the spot because of its proximity to downtown and greenspaces, the variety of stunning views, and the vibrancy of the immediate neighborhood surrounding it. He also mentioned the current active residents whom he envisions helping to integrate new Mariner's Watch residents into the neighborhood.

“With the growing infrastructure of downtown, I think we might soon reach a tipping point where Cleveland and its immediate urban neighborhoods will no longer be viewed as a daytime employment center with people returning to the suburbs after the business day,” he added. “There is infrastructure now available to full time residents where people choose to remain in the core to take advantage of those amenities. Having the options to work and play in and near the urban core has allowed Mariner's Watch to fulfill a part of that need.”

Brian added that the new construction may “push the attitude for additional beautified buildings, parks, shops and schools, and ultimately contribute to the benefit of the established residents of this great urban neighborhood.” ★

Legacy Award: Sister Maureen Doyle

Enriching the lives of children in the community enhances Ohio City for years to come. Teaching children from preschool through eighth grade, Urban Community School gives priority enrollment to impoverished children. The Director of the alternative school, Sister Maureen Doyle, has worked tirelessly to ensure it thrives.

She worked with others to create an endowment fund in 1993, raising $3 million; raised $17 million on top of a property donation by the Gallagher family to build a new school building in 2005; and raised another $17.3 million in 2012 to open a new middle school, increasing their capacity to 600 students.

“She is a prolific fundraiser, committed to the kids on the near west side of Cleveland and to making sure the school represents the economic and racial diversity of the neighborhood and all facets of the near west side,” Tom Gill, chief operating and development officer, said of Sister Doyle. “She has labored extensively to ensure the school provided for poor kids and is a revered educator in the region.”

Sister Doyle credits the dedicated teachers at the school with providing a safe place for children to learn.

“We are constantly looking for ways to increase the academic quality of the education we provide to children, I believe that all children can learn; it is our responsibility to introduce them to new concepts so they acquire the knowledge necessary to live meaningful and productive lives. Children are our best hope for the future.” ★
